Community Care Network (CNN) harnesses the service assets of two of the north east region's largest social service providers, connecting them in a unique coordinated system at more than 25 locations throughout Cuyahoga County. Bridgeway and Cleveland Christian Home have merged to become Community Care Network (CCN), Cleveland's newest and largest nonprofit behavioral health care provider organization

Together, these two agencies form a powerhouse of help for mentally and behaviorally challenged individuals in our community – serving more than 4,000 people a year across the two agencies; administering a budget of $24 million; and employing more than 450 staff members.

CCN's strength lies in its pool of administrative and systems management talent from which other community agencies can benefit. This continuum of management resources supports small to mid-range organizations in building capacity and efficiency through training, technical assistance, and mentoring.
